ZIMMERMAN SAYS
HE IS NOT MEMBER
OF KU KLUX KLAN

SECRETARY OF STATE
WITHDRAWS AFTER AT-TACK ON COMMISSION.

BLAINE NOT HEARD
Commission Refuses to Let Garey Testify or to Permit Governor on Stand.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison.—Blaine's trouble-ridden administration has more trouble on its hands.

The objection to proceeding further with the Cobban case by Zimmerman, who has been at odds with the governor for a long time, again places in the lime light the ruthless disregard of the statutes in order that the governor might fill the civil service commission with his friends.

To accomplish this he was obliged to appoint two more republicans of his faction and violate the law by having three members of the same political faith constitute the civil service commission. It is believed the matter will be tested in the courts.

Following on the heels of the ousting of Senator Staudemayer as a member of the legislative committee on highways, as told in the Gazette Wednesday, this other fight confronting Mr. Blaine adds to his factional and legal troubles.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison.—The hearing on dismissal of Mr. Cobban cannot be a sudden halt, shortly before noon today when the civil service commission declined to call to the stand Governor Blaine and members of the commission. Attorneys for Secretary of State Zimmerman immediately filed notices with the commission contesting its authority to conduct the hearing and its personnel, and then withdrew.

The statutes provide that the commission shall be made up of two majority and one minority party members. It is now made up of three republicans.

The civil service commission announced that it would not call the governor and Zimmerman's attorney declined to call to the stand Blaine and members of the commission. The purpose of calling the executive and the nature of the present fight, it further announced that it would not permit any of its members or Secretary A. E. Garey, to testify before the body, declaring it did not desire to hear testimony from its own members.

Up to Commission.

The service commission adjourned at noon after motions were made by John Baker, attorney for Cobban, that the commission find the charges against the automobile clerk unfounded and untrue and also that the civil service laws have been violated by Mr. Zimmerman. In dismissing Cobban, the commission is expected to stand by its decision in the case late this afternoon.

In withdrawing from the hearing, William A. Schroeder, Zimmerman's attorney, filed a statement contesting the jurisdiction of the commission to conduct the hearing on grounds that the service body is completely constituted and that it is biased and partial in the matter.

Schroeder also filed an affidavit from Secretary Zimmerman declaring that "he is not a member of the Ku Klux Klan or any other organization opposed to the people of Catholic faith" and that he discharged Cobban "because of his incompetency, inefficiency and insubordination and for no other reason whatever."

Some 500 to respond.

The hearing came to a climax after Joseph Edwards, former chief clerk of the state department, had testified. Zimmerman's attorneys asked for a recess until 2 o'clock but the commission announced it would proceed with all other business. Mr. Schroeder then declared he desired to stand by Governor Blaine. Secretary Garey questioned Schroeder on the authority for subpoenas issued for the Governor's appearance as well as members of the commission. It was decided by the commission that since no application had been made by any member of the commission for subpoenas to the commissioners or their officials, it would not call to the stand any of those sought by Mr. Zimmerman.

The commission does not care to have members of its body to appear and will not permit its members to testify for the secretary. Secretary

Fear for Safety of Major Martin in Alaskan Seas

BULLETIN
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bremerton, Wash.—A wireless message received at the Puget Sound naval station here today, from the cutter, Algonquin, of the U. S. Coast guard, was understood to mean that Major Martin was somewhere between Chigmit and the Shumagin Islands, 150 miles west of Chigmit. The Algonquin stated that a wireless station of Kodak had been established on Chigmit and had been asked to broadcast a message for all vessels to search for Major Martin between Chigmit and the Shumagins. The Algonquin has been in and near the Shumagins all this week.

False Pass, Unalaska Island—An appeal for the safety of Major Martin, missing in the United States around-the-world flight, was today in the absence of any word concerning him from points along the route he was to follow to Dutch Harbor, Unalaska Island, on 400 miles from Chigmit, Alaska. He left the latter station at 10:10 yesterday morning and to us is known his giant oiler Seafair has not been seen since.

The fact that the most terrible gales ever reported have been lashing the north Pacific ocean for the last five days has increased fears for Major Martin.

Seafair arrived at Chigmit last Friday in a blinding snow storm and hoped off yesterday, despite adverse weather conditions, in an effort to reach the other three planes, which have been waiting at Dutch Harbor since April 19.

The air has since April with snow blown from the mountains and the weather has been so bad that even the sea gulls did not fly today. They had sought no sheltered shelter from the wind, with a temperature ranging from 6 to 24 degrees above zero, driving the storm.

$500 EXEMPTION BLANKS RECEIVED

MIRACULOUS CURE WHEN COURT EDICT SAYS "NO DAMAGES"

City Gets Supply of Affidavits for Homestead Owners.

City Assessor Frank L. Smith has received a supply of blank affidavits from which he filled out those who may seek to claim the $500 homestead exemption allowed by the legislature in a law passed at its last session. The affidavits, issued in a form prescribed by the Wisconsin tax commission, contain full information in regard to the new law and space for the statement of the claimer to the tax assessor to be filled out before a notary public, town, city or village clerk, or any other officer authorized to administer oaths. What effect the law will have on the assessed valuation of Janesville can hardly be anticipated but indications point to a lower aggregate assessment for the year as a result of it.

File by July 1

The $500 assessment exemption will be allowed only when such affidavit is filed by the tax assessor and this must be done by July 1 of the current year in which the assessment is made. The duties of the assessor and clerk in connection with the new law are prescribed as follows:

Duty of Assessor — The assessor should separately assess each tax assessor property according to the particular description and at the ordinary setting value the same as other property, and insert this letter "H" after the assessment in the column indicated for that purpose. He has nothing further to do with the exemption.

Duties of Clerk — The clerk, on receipt of the assessment roll, should deduct from the aggregate assessment of each homestead description indicated by the assessor, not exceeding $500 of the assessment, against the improvements thereon, and carry out the corrected assessment in the column reserved for that purpose on the assessment roll. In no event can he deduct more than the assessed value of the homestead improvements, even if the assessment thereof be less than $500. In making his report of the aggregate assessment of taxable property in the district required by section 70-55, the clerk should exclude all homestead exemptions allowed under this act.

Who Are Exempt

The right of the $500 exemption applies only to the following:

1. To the owner of a dwelling house occupying the same as a homestead, and to the owner of a store building, duplex or apartment house, occupying a portion thereof, or an apartment therein, such as is occupied by two or more owners of a duplex or apartment house, each occupying a portion thereof or apartment thereon as a homestead.

2. To one or two joint tenants in common occupying premises as a homestead, and to each of the owners of joint tenancy of property in common, if both actually occupy the premises as homesteads.

3. To the purchaser under a land contract occupying the premises as a homestead, and to the fee owner of homestead premises subject to mortgage, for 20 years, and for a long term lease, occupying the premises as a homestead, if they are required to pay the taxes thereon. As tenants under short term leases are never assessed for the household interest and, therefore, pay the taxes thereon, they are entitled to the homestead deduction.

4. To a wife or other same family living thereon, such as can claim the exemption even though they may have separate premises elsewhere.

5. To the owner of buildings and improvements on the homestead only and not to the land itself. Actual use and occupancy of the premises as a homestead is essential in all cases, but temporary absence therefrom, sickness or other legitimate cause will not disentitle the exemption if there is a fixed intention to return and occupy the premises as soon as the cause of absence is removed.

EXPOSITION DOORS ARE THROWN OPEN

Hundreds Attend Opening of Mammoth 2-Day Educational Display.

Marking the culmination of several weeks of hard but enjoyable work for both teachers and students throughout the city, the great public school exposition opened in the high school building at 3 p. m. Thursday, when Sup't. F. O. Holt, chairman of the executive committee, and who is largely responsible for the elaborate plan of the exhibit, spoke on "The Value of the Exposition" in the auditorium. At the same time, the doors of the two large gymnasiums were thrown open, revealing for the first time to the public, the huge scope of the exhibits which will be open for inspection from 3-5 p. m. and 7-9 p. m. Thursday and Friday.

The general arrangement of booths in the room placed in each room of the high school building, on entering. The center aisle is devoted to junior and senior high school exhibits and on the left are booths given to home economics and vocational work, including manual arts and commercial. The center rear of the room is occupied by the band stand and the doors of the high school gymnasiums, which will be open during the time which the exposition will be open. MOLL AND TONY (HIC) STRONG FOR BUTLER
I'll bet he's just as tired as I be of sakin' around to pay a dollar for half pint of wood alcohol. Eatin' ain't so bad as I used to think. I was 'Rat' to the bone, but I'm all right, officer. I'll go along peaceful and having delivered her message of Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, who says prohibition laws are all wrong, Moll went to the station.

Interviewed generally, the favorite antagonists of the city are enthusiastic over Butler's speech. It was necessary to have an interpreter for most of them, as they were only in part aware that they had heard the president. States, but when told what Butler had said, "Tony the Skunk" one of the most active of the lot, who has been in jail a number of times, voiced the general approval. "Dey wants no saloon. Good! Ha! Ha! Yaas. Where dey gotta da booze? From Tony the bootleg! Yes, it is so?"

Educator Starts Storm WITH ATTACK ON DRY LAWS
New York's Nicholas Murray Butler's attack on prohibition and its enforcement laws, in a speech Tuesday night before the Missouri Society, started a storm. Columbia university's president himself said that he had been showered on Wednesday with telegrams, mostly congratulatory, and there was not lacking evidence that the dry advocates, recognizing the might of their antagonists, were determined on a counter-attack. The first question put to President Butler was refused to divulge the contents of his messages, explaining that the words of his champions were largely personal, comment and criticism by the other side was both open and public and it ranged from hard words to a flat suggestion that the trustees of Columbia might find it necessary to remove Dr. Butler. That suggestion came from Arthur J. Davis, who took William H. Anderson's place as superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League when Mr. Anderson went to Sing Sing.

One of the day's developments was a challenge to Dr. Butler to debate the question. It came from Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance.

Dr. Butler said he would decide Thursday whether or not to accept the challenge.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid soap from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to cover the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your scalp will be healthy, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

DRY LAW BACKED BY CLUB WOMEN

Dance Hall Bill Also, Given Support at Closing Session of Federation.

(By Staff Correspondent)

Edgerton — Resolutions supporting the Edgerton dance hall bill; the 18th amendment—and deplored the support given candidates for public office opposing prohibition and the adoption of the 18th amendment law, were among the important actions taken by the Wisconsin first district Federation of Women's Clubs at the concluding session of the 22nd annual convention here Wednesday.

The convention, in brief, passed the following resolutions:

—Approval of the Edgerton dance hall bill passed by the last legislature and pledging club women to cooperate with officials in carrying out its provisions.

Urging club women to cooperate with county and state normal schools in the interest of education of the young, mothers and to work for the election of women to school boards.

Endorsement of the 18th amendment and deplored the fact that women as well as men have voted for public officials known to be opposed to prohibition.

Endorsing the principle of international cooperation looking toward the abolition of war, but mentioning neither World court nor League of Nations.

Endorsing federal amendment to outlaw alcohol.

Past president of the district federation will be seated as voting delegates in all future conventions, according to another resolution. The courtesy resolution thanked the Edgerton Federation of clubs and the people of Edgerton for hospitality. Mrs. H. J. France, Waukesha, was chairman of the resolutions committee.

Miss Henry Yonmann, Waukesha, chairman of citizenship, gave an address advising women to join political parties and to endeavor to establish higher political ideals. She said voting "effectively" is far more difficult than many women imagined.

Edgerton, in the state federation, is asked to give one or more meetings in the early fall to carry on the study of the issues involved in the presidential election. Clubs also are urged to observe citizenship day as a community event, either on July 4 or Nov. 11, each year. Outlines for studies in citizenship are provided by the chairman of citizenship.

Education is Subsidized

Mrs. H. S. Richards, Madison, discussed "International Relations." Clubs are asked to appoint one or two women whose business will be to report at each meeting on current events with reference to efforts for international cooperation.

Mr. W. Mauer, president of Detroit college, gave an address on "Family Life and Higher Education." He said higher education does not necessarily mean college education, although institutions of learning are the best after high school courses to take for better home life. He urged that the child should not only learn to appreciate the beauties in music, art and literature, but should be enabled to express himself in one or the other of these fields. Courses in morality and ethics will be found in all public schools and colleges within 10 years, the speaker predicted.

Balance in Treasury

Reports of officers, committees and delegates occupied the forenoon session. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. H. D. Murdoch, Janesville, showed a balance of $27,200 after giving out $16,000 during the year. Dues received amounted to $14,419. New charters that joined the federation included the following: Pricilla club, Janesville; Sincerity club, Beloit; Outlook club, R. F. D. Beloit; Pleasant Prairie Neighborhood and Friendly Farmers, Evansville rural clubs.

The banquet, Tuesday night, was prepared and served by the sophomore class in cooking, under the direction of Miss Hoen, home economics teacher in the Edgerton schools. Music was furnished by the Edgerton high school band, under the direction of Ralph C. Jack.

LAKE MILLS

Lake Mills — Edith Wehr, a student in the eighth grade here, was stricken Tuesday with appendicitis but is recovering.

Mildred Veith of Milford, a high school student, was taken to Waterford hospital Monday, suffering from appendicitis.

The Lake Mills high school alumnae association officers discussed plans for the annual alumnae banquet at a meeting at the high school Tuesday night. It will be held at the Rock Lake pavilion Saturday June 7. Appointed on committee, Mrs. T. Black, chairman of decorations and facsimile work; correspondence. The Methodist Ladies Aid society will furnish the banquet.

Band Concerts on

School Grounds

Court house park, for years scene of the summer band concerts, has been displaced for this year by the new high school, and the band stand to that location, bringing this week. Capt. Ralph C. Jack, leader of the Bauer City band, said Thursday that those who listen will be seated on planks. The Chamber of Commerce and the retail merchants association are backing the band this year with general subscriptions.

EDGERTON SCHOOL

BAND TO PLAY HERE

The Edgerton high school band will give a complimentary concert in the assembly hall of Janesville high school during the Monday morning session. The Janesville high school senior band will play a return concert at the Edgerton school, May 8. Ralph Jack, Janesville, is the director of both bands and is instigator of the concerts.

POOL DIRECTORS TO

MEET IN MADISON

Directors of the Northern Wisconsin Cooperative Tobacco pool will meet Saturday in Madison. The Rock county district will be represented by D. A. McCarthy, Portage, and George Schumacher, Janesville.

Laundries Meeting—Charles Schallert, manager of the Janesville Steam laundry, expects to attend the 15th annual convention of the Wisconsin Laundry Owners Association at the Hotel Milwaukee, May 6, 7, 8. W. C. Cummings, Emporia, N. Y., president of the national association, and Dr. A. P. Shinn, manager of the American Institute of Laundering, will be among the speakers.

FIRE DEPARTMENT IS CENTRALIZED

Two Platoon System Also Becomes Effective—All Equipment Is Moved.

Janesville's fire department entered on a new era Thursday when centralization of all men and equipment in No. 1 station on North River street, and the double platoon system, went into effect.

The changes considered the most important in the history of the department, were put into operation within a few hours without any interruption of service. No. 1, Spring Brook, was closed for the first time since their erection and the fire truck housed in each station was driven to No. 1, where room for them was provided by removing the old steamer to No. 2 house and disengaging the hose.

The 24 men, including the four newly appointed firemen, spent all morning in moving and getting established in the new quarters and at noon Chief C. J. Murphy dismissed No. 1 shift until 7 a. m. Friday. No. 2 shift will continue at work until that hour when they will go off duty for 24 hours.

Personnel Is Announced.

Chief Murphy announced the personnel of shifts 1 and 2, as follows: No. 1—C. J. Ryan, assistant chief; David Baxter, captain; Fred Jungblut, driver of chief's car; Edward Lichten, driver of No. 1 truck; Wm. Murphy, 2nd chief; Edward Casey, 3rd chief; Charles Schubert, Rudolph Graf, firemen; James Casey, John Aldrich, teamsters.

No. 2—Sam Pinnow, captain; Frank Murphy, driver of chief's car; Elmer Grunder, driver of No. 1 truck; Verne Bleble, Dennis Casey, W. Conroy, Eric Graf, Arthur Kapke, Oscar Kausch, Charles Delaney, firemen; Harry Nahr, James Shoring, teamsters.

Debtin Asks Better Service.

An appeal for better service from the men, called for by Chief Murphy in the following bulletin posted Wednesday night.

Members of the Fire Department.

—"Thursday, May 1, the platoon system will go into effect in Janesville. Every member must have a phone at his residence.

"It will rest entirely upon you men to make or break this system. You are getting more time on the job, but you must be better service. If even one off duty will report when he hears the fire alarm bell, regardless of whether he thinks he is needed or not, it will save trouble to calling by phone in case he is needed.

"There will be 12 men of each day. Six of these may leave town and the other six must be where they can be called in case of need. In other words, you may leave town every second day you are off.

"Each man on the shift coming to work will report two meals with fireman and captain. You must be at the station at least five minutes before 7 a. m. After you arrive, under no condition will you leave there without permission of the officer in charge."

Rearrangement of Quarters.

A temporary office room has been set up on the second floor and by the arrangement in the sleeping room space has been provided for 17 beds. Additional beds will be placed in a large hallway. It is expected several of the men will double up on the use of beds and some are expected to sleep in the room on their nights off, thus saving an additional forced during the night when the worst fires usually occur.

Box 61, formerly located inside No. 1 station, was moved to a telephone station, was moved to a telephone station, the street at the corner of Eastern and South Jackson street.

In a second bulletin, Chief Murphy urged the appointment of Lt. Bates as captain of No. 1 shift and Sam Pinnow as captain of No. 2 and the reduction of John Aldrich from the rank of captain to that of fireman, to act as pilot on the aerial truck.

Paul Berg was given the contract for laying seven miles of gravel on Highway 50 between Burlington and the Kenosha county line, on his bid of $1,290,000.

Other bidders were P. W. Ryans, Burlington, H. A. Dollass, Arthur Dollass and the Misses Emily and Louise, all of Port Atkinson, and F. M. Little and F. C. Wiswall, Elkhorn.

Seniors Are Guests—Four troops of the Boy Scouts of Janesville are the guests of the American Legion at their meeting this week. The boys have represented the senior organization of the high school, St. Mary's church, St. Patrick's church and the Methodist church.

Just a Little More About Muscle Shoals

For nearly three years the question of the disposition of Muscle Shoals power plant, the several dams constructed or in course of construction, the canals and waterways and the houses and lands have all been under consideration. The nation has been informed over and over again about the enormous cost, the fact that no arrangement or method of operation by the government was in view, and that the property was for lease or sale. When in Janesville in January 1921, Senator Lenroot discussed, at the dinner of republicans, the cost and at that time brought up the question as to what would be done with Muscle Shoals.The Janesville Gazette has discussed this question from time to time especially concerning the bill of Henry Ford. There has never been a thought that the Detroit manufacturer had any other object in taking the property of the government on his terms except to make money. Henry Ford is no philanthropist, never was and is not at all noted for any good or charitable works in behalf of anybody. That element does not enter into the curriculum either personally or otherwise of Mr. Ford. But in reference to Muscle Shoals there has been opportunity for three years yes, ever since the armistice, for some one to make a bid for the incomplete property and to show the government as near a profit as the wanton waste and extravagance in building the dams and houses would permit. In other words, there was opportunity to appraise the plants on the basis of a normal cost if they had been built by some private concern as against the cost when built by a war-wasting government, and on that basis get some one to lease the property.But when the Alabama power company offered more than Mr. Ford wanted to pay for the Shoals, it was charged that it was in the interest of a great power monopoly. Other bidder suffered from the same charges and a fertilizer company was given short shrift because there was no protection for the farmers of the nation against any price-fixing. Not until the bill leasing the plants to Henry Ford had passed the House was there a real outside bid. Any attempt to show that Mr.
Ford had in mind the making of cheap fertilizer because he loved the farmers and was willing to sacrifice something for the agricultural interests has never met with any cordial reception by anybody who has followed Mr. Ford's history. But there was a certain clause in that contract which seemed to give to the agricultural interests at least a semblance of decent treatment and not altogether against them in the making of nitrates for which the Muscle Shoals plant was originally designed. We do need those nitrates in fertilizer.
We are at present obliged to obtain the bulk of the nitrates supply from other countries.
The government cannot operate the plant, has no organized method of doing it; it is inviting for the power distributors and the opportunity to build a great power center for all kinds of industrial trial work.That is the problem confronting the agricultural committee of the senate. Since the bill passed the house there have been other offers for the plant. The job is to let go of a war Jonah, not sell it for scrap as we have other great, costly plants, and to save the farmers any amount of millions in nitrates if possible—and any contract should be on the basis of making that entirely possible. In spite of the fog raised over these other proposals it remains that the Ford offer comes more nearly filling these specifications than any other—but the contract should be iron clad and as clear as day, before it is delivered to Henry Ford.So far congress has not answered the most vital question in American politics. "Where shall we park the car?"

A Governor in Prison.

Power, political or otherwise, may sometimes stand in the way of justice, but not often in the United States. The university of law is exemplified in the sentence of a governor to the penitentiary for a term of ten years with a fine of ten thousand dollars added.Len Small, governor of Illinois ran true to form in refusing the extradition of Anderson. All persons who feel the rough hand of the law will be pleased to know that Illinois is an island of safety for criminals.Mr. McAdoo claims some 500 delegates in the democratic convention elected so far. There are,
however, chances for a difference of opinion there.
The delegates actually instructed for McAdoo number 65, and those for Smith, 125, for Under-athan Davis of Kansas. The other delegates are ding to the joy and interest in the result. In the

AMERICANIZING AMERICANS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington—One of the beneficial results of the hue and cry that has been raised for months concerning the manner in which national affairs are conducted is a demand from the American people for accurate and detailed information as to their government and the way it functions.This demand is reflected in the plans and activities of political, civic, and religious organizations, publicists and educators. A drive is on that is described by that much abused word, "propaganda." In this case, however, there is no selfish or ulterior purpose back of the propaganda, for it is admittedly in the public interest and fills a long-felt want, being as it is an effort to Americanize Americans.In commercial parlance this movement might be described as a selling campaign. A man is said to be "sold" on a machine, or an article of merchandise, or a business system, when he has been thoroughly informed regarding it and convinced that it is the best obtainable and the best suited to his needs. Similarly it is the plan to "sell" the government to the American people.Until within the last few years there was no doubt that the vast majority of the people of this country were "sold" on their government in the sense that they believed it to be the best in the world. That was their pride and their boast. But in the light of recent events it is by no means so certain that the popular belief was founded primarily on information and knowledge. In fact, there is evidence that it was based largely on faith and tradition.This evidence is to be found in the extent of the popular reaction to criticisms and attacks directed against the government by impracticable visionaries, iconoclastic radicals and unscrupulous dissimilators. The American who not only believed his government to be the best in the world, but knew why it is that and what it does to make it that, was comparatively immune to all that sort of thing. If there was something wrong in the way the governmental machine was being operated, or if it needed some slight repairs, he wanted to know about it, but his attitude was decided that of the man from Missouri—he had to be shown.But his neighbor may have had little back of his belief except blind faith and the tradition handed down from his forefathers. Faith is a beautiful thing, but it is vulnerable, and so is tradition. This neighbor's position would be fundamentally weak because he could not combat as-sersion with knowledge nor repel imputations and accusations with facts and figures. Doubts and suspicions are easily engendered in the mind of such a man, and when that has been accomplished the work of the agitator is half done.That there are far too many of these weak neighbors in the United States in the judgment of thoughtful leaders in public affairs, whatever their partisan political affiliations may be. Hence the educational movement, or propaganda drive, that is now under way.Every American man and woman, every American boy and girl, is urged to study the American government, its fundamental principles its complicated machinery and its manifold operations.
This means more than mere memorizing of the Declaration of Independence—more than merely becoming acquainted with the provisions of the constitution and its amendments. It means acquiring a knowledge of how and why our governmental institutions were established and the machinery created through which they function.I suggest that you touch each little soothing with a mixture of glycerin and tincture of iodine, half and half, by means of a toothpick with the end wrapped with cotton and dipped in the mixture—fresh application the pain again.Growth of interest in the stars is indicated by the stars which foreshadow many changes in theatrical management.Again women are supposed to have unusual opportunities to render public service, but they will be subordinated to men's policies during the national campaign, it is prophesied.This is a lucky day for all who advertise and personal publicity is subject to the best possible conditions.Today is to be disturbed by the passing of heads of the government.This is a lucky day for lovers who should ing for sympathy and understanding.Love letters should be especially effective when written under this planetary government.Romance will continue to wield great power among men and women past youth. Women of middle age may be especially ardent at this time when vanity will take a strong hold on them.Mars is in a place supposed to be stimulating and provocative, which may attract attention to gressive city, showed that more than twenty struction for voters will be conducted throughout the country by both political parties and also under the auspices of the National League of Women Voters. The latter are not for women alone, many men being among those in attendance at the hundred odd schools that the league organized last year.In the old days it was deemed sufficient if the voters were instructed how to mark their ballot in the schools that were established by the literary organizations, but now the idea is that citizens should be taught not only how to vote but why.

In some degree, of course, the instruction in these schools will be partisan in character, but fundamentally it will tend toward better citizenship and at the same time ingratiate the lessons of the duties and responsibilities of citizenship.Perhaps the most important phase of this educational movement, however, is that planned to reach school children, for it is recognized that the best way to make good Americans is to begin their instruction at the earliest possible age when their minds are receptive and the ideas and ideals are being formed that are to dominate them through life. No criticism is directed at the work that has been or is being done in the public schools, save perhaps that it is not sufficiently concrete and practical. It is said, also, that many of the textbooks that are being used are not up to date.In this connection it may be stated by way of illustrating the interest in the new movement that a famous newspaper publisher in one of the largest cities of the country has presented every school teacher in his city with a copy of the book that treats comprehensively the great governmental establishment that exists in Washington, the appointment of being "professional" job hunters and office holders as that term is now used.A million foreigners are said to be waiting anxiously for a change in our immigration laws that will give them an opportunity to come to the United States. They have been completely "sold" on this country and ask only chance to become American. Their readiness to accept ours as the best government in the world is one of the great object lessons cited by those who are active in the movement to Americanize Americans.In mix-ups which follow the adoption of daylight saving by some institutions and the maintenance of standard time by others. Some of the factories and offices, industrial plants, about half of the interurban roads but no stores, have changed to daylight saving time. In the region in which the city there are the same differences and workers in shops and mills outside the city arrive home in the evening before they start according to the clocks. Daylight saving is a nuisance when not generally adopted in any community.Bill Heston evidently does not allow his own papers to come into his house. He said he had not even heard that Jake Hannon was dead after all the miles of sensational testimony his papers printed about it.Mr. McAdoo claims some 500 delegates in the democratic convention elected so far. There are,
however, chances for a difference of opinion there.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE RULING PASSION
Oh, I would be a richer man with many a dime to spend
If I could say "no" to them, who come with books to sell,
It I could send those men away, nor hear the things they have to say, I'd some day be a man of wealth and not a ne'er-do-well.The wife might have the dress she needs and may a stylish hat,
The children, too, might have the shoes they sadly need to wear,
It glob men did not come along and find me weak who would be strong And bid me change my salary for volumes old and rare.Some men have drunk their wages down and some with dice have gained,
And some have hung all before a woman's pretty looks;
But wine and game and women fair are not the things for which I care, Tis not to them my money goes,—my weakness is for books!I hear the tempter's voice repeat the treasures
I have coveted,
I view the plates he shows to me and wish that they were mine;
The vases I'd made I then forget, I can't resist
Just one more set,
Another agent has my name upon the dotted line!Sometimes the drunkard will reform, the good wife oft declines;
Sometimes the gambler quits his dice, and righteous turn the crooks,
Sometimes love will bring back to you the fickle man and keep him true,
But no one ever saved the man whose passion runs to books.

He drew the portions together again and, leaving the room, went out into the reception hall beyond. There was no light showing anywhere and he was obliged to feel his way along. The aquarium was in, or rather, composed in itself, a little wing built at the rear of the house, but connected therewith by a short, narrow passageway. He knew the way quite well enough.

"Here!" cried the old man. "Come over here!"

Locke blinked a little in the light as he stepped forward. It reflected bewilderingly from the glass faces of the tanks that were everywhere about.

He joined the old man in the center of the aquarium. Here again was an open space from which the tanks radiated off much after the manner of the spokes of a wheel, and this space was utilized as a sort of luxurious observation point, so to speak, for a heavy oriental rug was on the tiled floor, and ranged around a table were a number of big, easy chairs.

From under his dressing gown now the old man took a package that was wrapped in oiled silk, and laid it on the table.

"Money!" he cried abruptly. "Hah! We know it's power, young man, you and I!" He began to fumble with the cord that was tied around the package, and then suddenly commenced to totter again. "Did I not tell you I was being followed, always being followed?" Well, last night they followed, we were seen.

"Tee-hee! Tee-hee! I told you who would see who was the root! They are there tonight—digging—digging—digging. Tee-hee! Tee-hee! They will dig the place all up before they are sure it is not there."

"Money! That package! Locke's lips tightened a little. Was this, as he had said, a half-explored, half-hidden secret? "I got a million dollars in last that Polly had seen?" And what did the man mean by "Wrong seen?" And "Digging?"

"It's Locke," he announced quietly. "That's you, Mr. Marlin, isn't it?"

"Huh!" ejaculated the other. "You, my boy, eh? Well, that's quite

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

Colic. Very few babies are annoyed at some or other of being "toddled." The first few weeks, especially the first six weeks time, if the mother continues to nurse regularly, to nurse only 10 to 15 minutes and to keep placid and cool, sensibly of wholesome food, this period will pass and the baby will settle down to eating and sleeping.

Colic which lasts for several months is seldom caused by the old midwife's whisper had become suddenly confident—"I know. They were there—they are always there—watching—eyes are always watching." He broke into his story once more, "Tee-hee! Tee-hee! They are there tonight—digging—digging—digging. Tee-hee! Tee-hee! They will dig the place all up before they are sure it is not there."

"Money! That package! Locke's lips tightened a little. Was this, as he had said, a half-explored, half-hidden secret?

The old man dropped the package from his hands and leaned across the table, his eyes suddenly bright.

"If I knew, I would kill them!" Locke spoke in a soothsaying tone, "Did you see anybody following you last night?"

"It is not necessary to see"—the old midwife's whisper had become suddenly confident—"I know. They were there—they are always there—watching—eyes are always watching." He broke into his story once more, "Tee-hee! Tee-hee! They are there tonight—digging—digging—digging. Tee-hee! Tee-hee! They will dig the place all up before they are sure it is not there."

The permanent relief comes only when the colic is sought out and attended to but for immediate relief there is nothing better than hot water. Give the baby a tablespoonful every two hours to drink and change his position so as to give the rectum a chance to be belched up, give a warm water enema which will relieve the intestines of gas and then use a hot water bottle to warm the small stomach.

If the baby is gaining steadily and eating more than normal every week, the colic may be due to too much food, but if the baby is not gaining and still comes between each feeding, don't dose him for colic but increase his food supply, and in most cases the colic will cease to satisfy the last.

Colic is due to indigestion, and when it is true colic, it comes from too rich a food, or too much food, or food given at irregular or too frequent intervals. A baby should cease the so-called colic will vanish vitiation please tell me how I can do in a manner without hurting his feelings.

I am 21 years old and he is 1 Judge, about 25.

If your employer speaks well of the place you are in, it will make a good impression. I think it would be safe for you to accept his invitation. Possibly he could find out for you whether he is married or not. If you are living at home ask him to call to meet your mother. She could put a few tactful questions that might be embarrassing for you to answer, but you will be safe in doing so.

If either of these ways is open you could ask him yourself either in a half-joking manner, assuming that of course he isn't or would not have asked you to go anywhere with him. If you decide to decline his invitation say pleasantly that you are sorry but you hardly feel you know him well enough.

THEY QUARRELED.

Dear Mrs. Thompson! I am 25 years of age. I met a young man about two years ago and we have kept steady company ever since and were engaged to be married.

About two weeks ago he and I quarreled and broke up. Since I am partly to blame for the quarrel, would it be proper to write him a note asking for forgiveness and suggesting that we call again and renew our friendship? I think the world and all of him.

You might write and say you are sorry for the quarrel, and if he wants to make up he will take steps to renew your former relationship. It would not be advisable to "tell him pie" to the extent of asking him to call and renew the friendship.

BILL TILDEN is not the first athlete to write for newspapers or other publications while performing as an amateur. The high school boy who attends school, college or university, competes in athletics and also writes for the newspapers as a correspondent. No one has ever questioned their eligibility. Yet if the spirit of the rules of the U. S. L. A. on the player-writer were to be applied generally in amateur circles, it would hit a great many. The stipulation in the tennis rule dwells upon "large sums" of money being accepted for writing. Unfortunately, in the eyes of most folks, the great size of the sum does not determine a sum money more or less important than the person who accepts it, in a larger sum. If the rule were to be applied to running, it would take Charley Paddock, famous sprinter, out of amateur competition. All in all, it seems that the tennis folks have stretched the amateur point too far.

THE AMATEUR is the foundation of all sport. However, it must be remembered that the amateur rules are based largely upon the old English understanding of participation by the amateur. In 1863, 112 Englishmen in large part amateur rules of today are antiquated and should be brought up to modern usage. As an example of the English attitude, take the case of the professional golfer over in the British Isles. He is generally looked upon as a servant and while he is safe enough to associate with out on the links, he is not considered good enough to be permitted to enter the clubhouse and mingle with the members.

THE AMATEUR is the ideal in sports. Youth loses them to these among professional ranks that make "pure" sports valuable to the community. Big league baseball is professional and mighty important in the United States. Professional golfers and all athletic coaches have their place. These men have high ideals, also, and while they are making their livelihood through the medium of athletics, they do not endeavor to do so at the expense of the community. The hitch comes, and gets, when professional sport is condoned as where the professional has no thought of the good of the sport, the effects of his conduct upon the game or the community, but uses it merely as a means toward an end, regardless of the moral side of his actions. Such a professional is commonly called a "tough" and more often than not is the side-partner of the gambler and other underworld element.

The test of whether an amateur is a value to the game and the community, or whether a professional is of such value, rests entirely upon the one phrase, "Clean Athletics."

Opened last fall as professional, Tilden refuses, saying he will remain amateur until forced out.

Suzanne Lenglen of France and champion tennis player of world may be chosen to take Olympic oath on behalf of all competitors.

WOMEN'S HAND TO BE FELT IN PARTY

Will Have More to Do With 1924 Campaign Than Ever Before.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1924, by the Janesville Gazette. Special Correspondence to the Associated Press.

BUTTE, N. Y.—Women will have more to do and say at the republican and democratic national conventions this year than at any other presidential nominating conventions that have ever been held.

Although the National League of Women Voters in annual session here is a non-partisan body, a canvass of the delegates shows that many have aligned themselves with the two major parties, and that several will be active in the drafting of platform planks and the state delegations.

Talking with various members of the league here, one gets the impression that the women of the country have not yet gone into organization activity with the same intensity as their brother voters nor have they been able to accept the present form of party organizations as particularly attractive. Most of the women are disposed to remain independent of party affiliation and the task of the party leaders is to reform their own organization methods so as to draw to their side more and more women voters.

Applause, League's Mention.

The convention here may be seen as the leaders in political work in America among women. They go about their convention with serious manner and they apply themselves earnestly to the program of principles. They took no action on extreme proposals. They did not go on record for peace-at-any-price or total disarmament or even birth control. They did not fail however, to report the world court and the significant role which the League of Nations was mentioned the outburst of applause were overwhelming.

President Coolidge may consider that the country has finally rejected the League of Nations but judging by the mood of the convention here, the women have not disposed of it finally at all.

There was a definite under-current of thought on the question of international co-operation. Peace still remains in the minds of the women as something not to be neglected except in the hour of an emergency. They think about it long before the emergency arises. Both the democratic and republican national delegations could do little better than if they adopted in its entirety the set of humanitarian principles promulgated by the National League of Women Voters. The social justice planks which are always so difficult to get into party conventions are made to order for the major conventions this year. The recommendations for legislation are now in violation of the tradition of either the democratic or republican parties.

All unquestionably dry.

Incidentally, there is no mistaking the sentiment of the women on the
